Forlì International Airport "Luigi Ridolfi"

EXPRESSION OF INTEREST FOR AERONAUTICAL MAINTENANCE BASE

Forlì Airport is located in a consolidated context, representing, together with the surrounding areas, an international technological hub of strategic relevance for the territory of Forlì and its surroundings, called, "Polo Tecnologico Aeronautico, P.T.A." (Technological-Aeronautical Hub), which includes the Aerospace Engineering Department of the University of Bologna, ENAV Academy, the Technical-Aeronautical Institute "F. Baracca", the flight schools and the training center for aircraft maintainers.

F.A. s.r.l., as the new Management Company of Forlì Airport, intends to make available hangars and offices to Air Carriers that intend to carry out both maintenance and commercial passenger and/or cargo traffic activities.

For this reason, F.A. s.r.l. intends to evaluate the offers received from those airlines interested in operating at Forlì Airport.

The Company also informs that requests received from those Carriers that intend to establish an operational and/or technical-maintenance base will be evaluated with particular attention and interest.

F.A. s.r.l. advises that, for this purpose, two hangars are available, suitable to accommodate aircraft up to class A320 and Boeing 737 800, with direct access to the Movement Area.

Hangars and offices can be leased under a sub-concession agreement.

Forlì Airport's configuration also allows the development and extension of the whole airport area, including Movement Area (apron and runway) and facilities (terminal, hangar and buildings).

The Technological-Aeronautical Hub is configured according to the aims of integrating airport purposes with university (scientific pole), higher education, research, experimenting activities and the provision of advanced services.
